The king would promise to protect the vassal nation in exchange for a promise of loyalty and tribute. The book of Deuteronomy is structured like such a treaty. The Lord promises to protect and dwell personally with Israel if it will be loyal to Him alone (keep the Ten Commandments and Mosaic Law) and give Him tribute, such as sacrifices of worship.

To glory in her pride of ancestry. JOCASTA O woe is thee, poor wretch! With that last word I leave thee, henceforth silent evermore. Exit JOCASTA. CHORUS Why, Oedipus, why stung with passionate grief Hath the queen thus departed? Much I fear From this dead calm will burst a storm of woes. OEDIPUS Let the storm burst, my fixed resolve still holds, and motions for the youthful king to take his rightful place. - King at last, Simba climbs through the rain to the summit of Pride Rock and lets out a mighty roar. Simba looks up to the heavens once again and sees the clouds part to reveal an ocean of stars. Distant thunder rumbles and the new king hears the old king’s voice: Remember! –

Sailing into the middle of the story was a young Congo River steamboat officer named Joseph Conrad. And looming above them all, the duplicitous billionaire King Leopold II. With great power and compassion, King Leopold’s Ghost will brand the tragedy of the Congo—too long forgotten—onto the conscience of the West.

King’s Quest III: To Heir Is Human is the third installment in the King’s Quest series of graphic adventure games developed and released by Sierra On-Line in 1988. The game was originally released for the Apple II and PC DOS, and later ported to several other computer systems. It was the first title game in the series not to feature King Graham as the player character.
